Spring Crafts at Cosford

Sunday 15th March 2009

10am – 4pm

FREE

If you're struggling for ideas for that unusual Mother's Day gift, with only 2 weeks left to find that special something, why not visit the Spring Crafts Fayre at the Royal Air Force Museum Cosford where there is sure to be a gift to suit that someone special in your life.

The event will take place on Sunday 15th March 2009 between 10am – 4pm in the Museum's Hangar 1. Over thirty stalls will host a variety of crafts and gifts; including jewellery, cards, home-made fudge and preserves, handbags, flowers, paintings plus many other charming and affordably priced gifts to help you find something truly unique.

The show is organised by The Bee's Knees company who have returned following the success of the Christmas Craft Fayre held last November. With even more stalls on board this time round, the fayre is sure to offer visitors even more choice.

Organisers Bea Millard & Gary Stevens say:

'We have arranged a broad spectrum of crafts to meet people's interests and to provide a wide range of gifts that are not available in high street stores. With many people coming to see the aeroplanes too, our aim is to make this a real family day out and build on the success of the last craft fayre.'

The Museum is open daily from 10am – 6pm. Entry to the Museum and parking are FREE. For further information, please call the Royal Air Force Museum, on 01902 376 200 or visit the museum website, www.rafmuseum.org.
